THE FRENCH EMPEROR ON AMERICAN AFFAIRS.

The most important feature of foreign news is the intimation said to have been made by the Emperor Napoleon to Mr. Seward, that if decided successes, on either side, did not occur within six months, the French and English governments would interpose to stop farther hostilities. Whether this statement was intended to convey a threat or a promise, is not stated; but from recent developments, respecting the French Minister's visit to Richmond, it apparently bodes no good to the rebel army and his cause. The Emperor confirms the intimation said to have been made by M. Mercier, that the time has now departed when the confederate leaders can hope for the aid or sympathy of foreign nations, and that the French government would interpose its good offices in securing to the South the spirit and the protection of the Constitution of the United States, in accordance with the terms of the proclamation of the President at the commencement of the civil war.

This is an announcement of the highest importance. Though our war has happily emancipated the American people for ever from the baneful influence of foreign opinions and ideas, yet it cannot be denied that our civil war still renders us peculiarly liable to the good or evil offices of the European nations. Were the whole world to arm against our country and our cause, it would only stimulate us to renewed exertions in behalf of the integrity of our nation and Government. The ability, however, of foreign nations to shorten or prolong the struggle can not be doubted. It was well observed by Secretary Seward in a recent dispatch to a United States Minister abroad, that the rebellion would terminate in a day if it were deprived of the aid and sympathy of the European powers. If the remarks, then, of the Emperor Napoleon, taken in connection with the visit of his Minister to Richmond, afford any indication that the rebels are also the power of the North, we may hail this intelligence as a sign of the coming peace which may be nearer than creakers are willing to suppose.

WILLIAMSBURG ABANDONED.

On the receipt of the first news of the evacuation of Yorktown, we expressed the opinion that the rebels would not make any decisive stand at Williamsburg, for the position is less advantageous than that of Yorktown. The telegraph now informs us that Williamsburg has been evacuated, and that the rebels are in full flight, pursued by our forces. It is very likely that they have been thrown up at various points on the route to Richmond, where their best and most reliable troops can take a temporary refuge and check the advance of the pursuers. It is possible, also, that the line of the Chickahominy may be obstinately defended, to the delay of our advance for some days, while the bulk of the rebel army is taking up its final position before and around Richmond. But, on the other hand, even if this is the rebel plan, the rapid and resolute prosecution of the pursuit under Gen. McClellan may defeat the design, and drive the rebel horde back upon their capital in such a distracted and panic-stricken state, that its defense will be out of the question.

"On to Richmond" is now the motto of both pursuers and pursued. The hope of the latter is to interpose all available obstacles in the path of the former, who are bound to overcome both them and their projectors. There may be, as our commander telegraphs, other battles to be fought between Williamsburg and Richmond, but the valor of our eager troops, as evinced in the victory of Monday, presages the successive and final results. The heroic achievements of Hooker's division, and the unequalled bayonet charge of Hancock's brigade, opening a path like that of the lightning, show of what stuff the army of the Potomac is made. All honor to those noble men, and to their worthy young General in command! All honor, too, to those who have fallen for their country's sake in the deadly breach. We shrink to have their names reported for many of our own gallant sons were in Hooker's division, and we know they would be in the front, if possible, in the day of the final assault. Now is the hour of our country's triumph, which sees her patriotic sons driven back in bloody discomfiture. And let us be content therewith, and hopeful over the future. —(Boston Journal.)

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS.

DEATH OF ANOTHER NEWPORT BOY.—Yesterday the sad intelligence was brought here, that John W. Chase, son of Jacobus Chase, late of this city, was dead, another victim to civil war. John was 21 years of age, and with his twin brother James, enlisted in Co. G of the 4th R. I. Volunteers. Letters were received yesterday by the widowed and stricken mother, from the surviving brother James, stating that John died at Fort Mifflin of Typhoid Fever, and we are sorry that the letters are not now available to us in time to embody some extracts in this notice. We shall examine them perhaps to publish from them to-morrow. This is a sad bereavement. John was an uncommonly correct and manly lad. Left even in early childhood, John and James both more or less dependent upon themselves, taught the means of sustaining themselves, and assisting their mother, who has almost always been an invalid, and for some time a widow. Of course being now only of age, they have never yet been enabled to do all that their feelings and filial duty, prompted, and the enlistment seemed to offer something of an opportunity to realize their hopes. They have both, these twin boys, carefully husbanded their wages, and sent home to their mother, a goodly share; and so also, has Zacharias, another and younger boy, a member of the 5th R. I. Volunteers. This woman, although she has more than an "only son," is nevertheless a widow, and poor, and an invalid. Three boys, the cherished treasures of her heart, and the fondest hopes of her last years, are all laid upon the altar of a bleeding country. And by an inscrutable Providence, which vain man must not question, one has been taken, who if there was any one of her three boys entitled to be considered her main dependence was she. He was respected and beloved by all who knew him, and although not a member of a Church, was a steady Sabbath School Scholar.

And it is only when we, who live at a distance from the field of active warfare, go into the house of mourning, and stand by the couch of suffering, and behold the iron of anguish entering deeply into some poor suffering human soul—when we see reason tottering to its dominion, and unable, for a time, to resume its sway, over the wreck made by one agonizing blow of misfortune—it is only then that we realize all the horrors of this unnatural war, or that we appreciate the deep, demoralizing, crushing responsibility that rests upon the demagogues, North and South, who fanatical, corruption, and want of integrity, have precipitated this crisis upon the only Government in the world, adapted in the highest sense, to foster and develop the best instincts of humanity, and to place an amount of happiness in the possible enjoyment of every one of its subjects. And it is in view of such heart-rending facts as we are called upon to record to-day, and have been called upon to do so, several times before, and will yet probably have to do in times to come (though God forbid we say, that it is in view of such facts, we feel that the van of each army should be made up of the political demagogues, and the serried ranks of war should compose embattled hosts of the very men who now shrink the dangers which they themselves have evoked.

MATHEMATICAL.—Mr. George Allen, of Providence, and Miss Sarah Clarke, daughter of the late Wright Clarke, of this city, were married by the Rev. Mr. Child, at Zion Church this morning. The ceremony was witnessed by a large number of spectators, which would have been much larger had it been more generally known that the marriage was to take place at the church. The happy pair immediately left for Providence in the steamer Perry, accompanied by some thirty of their friends.

A SWORD, said to have been picked up at Yorktown, which is supposed to have belonged to Gen. Beauregard is hung up for exhibition outside the door of T. Burlingame's Book Store. The hacked and battered condition of the edge of this instrument of death evinces hard service somewhere, but whether on soldiers' necks or on some stone-heap is uncertain.

Several rising carpenters, who are evidently willing that men may see their good works, lit on the steps of the Central Baptist Church this morning, and the result of their labors was soon manifest in the holy appearance of the steeple.

CAPT. ALEXANDER G. SWASEY.—A native of this city, but of late a resident of South Carolina, and who was in command of the rebel vessel, the Killa Warley, recently captured by the Santiago de Cuba, is now a prisoner at Fort Lafayette.

The Pittsburg correspondent of the New York Tribune says that Gen. McClellan's division buried 633 rebels left upon the field, Gen. Sherman's 600, Gen. Nelson's 263, and Col. Thayer's Brigade of Gen. Lew. Wallace's Division, 123. These are the only commands from which returns have been received; but the most of the other divisions and brigades buried a proportionate number. The rebels must have lost 4000 killed, by the most moderate estimate. After the battle, Capt. Russell of the 6th Ohio, counted the bodies of 150 rebels lying where they fell, upon a strip of land less than one-fourth of a mile long, and 50 yards in width.

LETTERS FROM BEAUFORT.

BEAUFORT, N. C. April 25, 1862.

DEAR NEWS.—Your correspondent is now stationed here, a place of fashionable resort in the summer season, and a very good place for the South. But in comparison with Newport, dear, good, old Newport, it is of no account. Well can I see why the Southrons should prefer the latter, and like to resort to it in such numbers. How I would like to tread on its velvet green, for here it is said, ankle deep. Here we are comfortably settled down in good quarters, and we are enjoying them too! The change is great, from a couch upon the wet ground, rolled in one's blanket, to a fine little cottage, well furnished. Only one company is now at Beaufort, the remainder have been withdrawn across to the Banks. The boys occupy a good large house, and are having a nice rest, and they needed it much. The officers occupy a furnished cottage, but the greatest luxury is a good bed. The remainder of our Regiment is over on Bogus Banks at the terminus of which stands Fort Macon. The 5th R. I., 8th Conn., are also there. Every moment since we have been here has been occupied in building batteries and getting mortars in position. Nearly every day that we have been at work the Fort has kept up a fire of shot and shell, and they fire well; but it was of no use, they could not stop the Yankees. We, here in Beaufort, have had to sit day after day and have chafed to see them fire, and we not able to return it, but yesterday, Gen. Park signalled over to us—"all ready to open." Gen. Burnside, who had come down the night before from Newbern, sent a flag of truce to the Fort and summoned Col. White, commandant, to surrender. This the Col. refused to do, and on return of the boat with his answer, Gen. Burnside signalled to Gen. Park at the Banks—"open at once." But it being late, and the guns not being unmasked, which could not be done in the day time without exposing the men to the whole of the enemy's fire from the Fort, it was thought best to wait until morning. By "unmasked," I mean the batteries have been planted in the night, the guns placed in position, and yet the rebels had no knowledge of their location; because, they were behind natural breastworks of sand which went down in the rear, the embrasures outwardly through, so that in front, there were no appearances of a battery. Last night, the em-barrures were cut quite through, thus removing the mask, or unmasking the Batteries.

This morning at ten minutes before six o'clock, a delightful dream of home was rudely broken by a jar like the shock of an earthquake, awakening me, and causing me to leap out into the middle of the room. I was dressed, and out, glass in hand, before the smoke had vanished, and sure enough, the Yankees had begun their music. The rebels have had a lookout on their flagstaff, hoisted to masthead, to watch from the time we began playing our batteries, which was relieved regularly; and it was no slight amusement to see that chap come down. About 100 men were outside of the Fort, and the way they ran in, was fleet in the extreme, resembling so many sand-fiddlers, (Anglo crabs?) running into their holes on the beach.

Soon the batteries were in full play!—The Fort replied promptly, at ten minutes past six, and such a noise! Five thousand Fourth of July performances, would not begin to equal it. It took our Batteries some two hours to get the range, and then they planted the shell into the Fort grandly. At ten o'clock the blockading fleet of four vessels, ran in and commenced in splendid style to take them on another side. It took them by surprise, and for awhile the noise was terrible. The sea ran so high however, that the gunboats were obliged to leave off after firing about one hour.

The best feature of the day was the establishment of a complete understanding between our city and the Banks. We could see the whole proceeding distinctly. When the Batteries threw shells over, our signal corps noting the fact, would signal to them "too far," when their shell failed to reach the Fort, they signalled "short." At last, when they had the range correct, they signalled "all right," thus rendering valuable aid to our gunners, who could not see where their shot or shell fell.

After dinner, being in my room, I had full sleep (to think of sleeping with the house jarring to its foundation every minute) when Maj. Allan, who is in our command here, ran in to inform me that the Fort had surrendered. And sure enough, on reaching the street, the firing had ceased, and a white flag was flying on one of the guns of the Fort. We moved our boat and started for the Fort, with our flag of truce flying, from our bows. We rowed quite near this time, when a boat from the Fort informed us, that a flag of truce had gone up to the Batteries from the Fort, for some object, what we could not learn from the Lieutenant in charge. We gave him the letters (some 100) for his garrison from their friends, and returned to the city. The firing having ceased for the night, negotiations are now pending between the two Commanders.

20th—I have only time to say, that the Fort has surrendered, with 8 killed, and 14 wounded,—on our side I killed and 2 wounded. The 5th R. I. are now marching up to take possession of the Fort.

Yours, D. F. Jr.

P. S.—I send herewith a copy of a note from the Fort, to Beaufort, it was sent in consequence of permission from Gen. Burnside to the garrison, to write to their friends, and a promise on our part to return their answers.

WAR NEWS.

THE POTTSVILLE RIOT.

SERIOUS DAMAGE TO THE COAL MINES.

Philadelphia, May 7.—The strike among the miners near Pottsville is becoming serious. Employers not complying with their demand, the miners have stopped the pumps, causing serious damage to property from the flooding of the mines.

The mines of the Forest Improvement Company are rapidly filling with water. Several infantry companies leave this afternoon to prevent any further damage.

FROM GENERAL BURNSIDE'S DEPARTMENT.

REGIMENT OF NORTH CAROLINIANS ORGANIZED.

New York, May 7.—Advice from Burnside's division state that a regiment of North Carolinians have been organized. Capt. Potter, of Gen. Foster's staff, has been appointed Colonel, and he and two companies of our troops had left for Washington, N. C., to form a nucleus of the regiment.

Large numbers of Union men voluntarily come and take the oath of allegiance, and they will be armed and equipped by Gen. Burnside to defend their homes against the rebels.

IMPORTANT FROM MEXICO.

HOSTILITIES BEGUN BY THE FRENCH.

New York, May 7.—Vera Cruz dates of the 24th, state that the French have opened hostilities, and have taken possession of Orizaba. Cordova has declared for Almonte. The British ministers are said to be holding private interviews with Doblado at Puebla. The Mexicans have received reinforcements of 9000 men, and General Zaragoza would dispute the march of the French.

The Spanish troops on the Island of St. Domingo had attacked the Haytiens, and some batteries and troops had been sent there. The Spanish claim the title to certain lands which the Haytiens would not yield.

THE VICTORY IN WILLIAMSBURG.

ITS MAGNITUDE INCREASING.

Washington, May 7.—The Fortress Monroe boat which left at 3 o'clock this morning, has arrived at Cherrystone, bringing the following:

Williamsburg, May 6.—Every hour proves our victory more complete. The enemy's loss was great, especially in officers. Have just heard of five more of their guns being captured. Prisoners are constantly arriving. (Signed)

G. B. MCCLELLAN,

Major General Commanding.

New York, May 7.—A special dispatch to this evening's Times, dated Yorktown Tuesday, states that our troops fought all day at Williamsburg. At the outset we took two of their works and were advancing, but the exhaustion of those of our regiments which were earliest in the field and which had no provisions during the day, compelled them to fall back, as they were utterly worn out. One of our batteries was lost by getting imbedded in the mud, and its horses were shot.

General McClellan arrived on the ground at five o'clock, and assumed command. He directed all our exhausted troops to retire filled their places with fresh men, drove back the enemy, repossessed the ground and works taken in the morning, captured another breastwork, and took about fifteen prisoners. The firing was kept up until after dark, at which time everything looked well.

To-day the whole army reserves, regulars and all, are ordered up, and the battle will be resumed if the rebels stand. A strong force has gone to West Point, and will attack the rebels in the rear.

No report of yesterday's losses has yet been received.

Fremont's Department.—The 10th Me. regiment and 4th Connecticut cavalry are with Gen. Fremont in Western Virginia. A correspondent of the New York Post, who is with this division, says:

"The mountainous region along the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad continues to be infested with roving bands of bushwhackers, barn-burners, (not political ones,) robbers, horse-thieves, destroyers of Union property, and, in fact, all species of rebel villains; but they dare not come down into the roads or return to their homes. Sixty of them, a few days since, met a detachment of Virginia Union troops, which resulted in a running fight of over nine miles, ending by killing seventeen and taking prisoners nineteen rebels, who were armed with all kinds of weapons, such as pistols, knives, shot guns, lances, &c. The small village of Addison, in Webster county, their place of rendezvous, was burnt, and the prisoners sent to Summerville.

Day before yesterday a dozen or more rebels, only about sixteen miles from Wheeling, were attacked by a party of the 20th Virginia and taken prisoners."

The late demonstration by Hon. F. P. Blair in favor of colonization, as a condition precedent to emancipation, is said by his opponents to have lost him the German vote, while his great injury with another class. The grand contest will be to commit the Republics of St. Louis to the Blair doctrine or its opposite. The adverse party is gradually combining in favor of B. Gratz Brown, the old-lust Free-Soil Benton democrat, who was editor of the Democrat a few years ago.

A few weeks after a late marriage the doting husband had some peculiar thoughts when putting on his clean shirt as he saw no appearance of a washing. He thereupon rose earlier than usual one morning and kindled a fire. When hanging on the kettle, he made a noise on purpose to arouse his early wife. She peeked over the blankets and exclaimed: "My dear—what are you doing?" He deliberately responded: "I've put on my last clean shirt, and am going to wash myself." "Very well," said Mrs. Easy, "you had better wash one for me too."

The Richmond Dispatch says that the conditions on which the Hon. John. Botts was released from his imprisonment in Castle Godwin by the Court of Inquiry that examined the charge of disloyalty preferred against him, are:—First, that after being permitted to go to his residence in Henrico, he shall, with all convenient speed, prepare to remove to a location further South; and when the same is indicated by him, it must be approved by the War Department of the U. S. Government. It has already been intimated that had not Mr. Botts, with his characteristic obstinacy, declared himself a neutral in the present war, the Court of Inquiry would have recommended his discharge. Of this we know nothing, but the conditions of his release, as specified above, may be relied on.

The secessionists of Washington profess to be delighted with the rebel retreat from Yorktown. They declare the tide is turned in their favor; that Halleck's army will be destroyed in a week; that Jeff. Davis will liberate Maryland in thirty days; and Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri will be united with the Southern Confederacy before midsummer! "I find no one investing money on this programme," says a correspondent, pitifully.

The Senate Finance Committee have determined to report the tax bill tomorrow, or Tuesday at the farthest. They have been unable to make the many important changes contemplated, and will probably leave whisky and tobacco untouched.
